MINISTER AT HAWAII

[illegible] of Col. James H. Blount at Honolulu in place of the American flag to be hauled down and the Union Jack put in its place to get out of a supposed difficulty with England will shock [illegible]. A sober second thought, however, will lead to the belief that until this country has annexed Hawaii, or at least a protectorate over the islands our flag is not the proper emblem while the Hawaiian flag is, and that it is proper, therefore, that the latter standard should wave over the government buildings.

The withdrawal of our troops will give the Provisional Government a chance to show that it has general support and does not need to be upheld by United States bayonets. In view of a counter revolution, rendering life and property unsafe, the marines can easily be landed again for the preservation of order.

On one point Mr Blount has expressed himself decidedly. Neither Japan nor any other foreign power will be allowed to establish a protectorate over Hawaii, much less to annex the islands. Mr Blount's policy will doubtless be criticised as a sort of dog in the manger way of dealing with affairs. Theoretically however, the islands are still independent, just as they were under Liliuokalani or Kaiulani. We did not take them ourselves, nor would we permit anybody else to take them, so Mr Blount is simply carrying out the traditional policy of our government.

"JEFFERSONIAN PRINCIPLES"

Democrats all over the country celebrated Jefferson's birthday Thursday night, and there was a flood of oratory about "Jeffersonian principles." As there is not one Democrat in a thousand who knows what Jefferson's principles were, most of the speeches were decidedly vague.

It would be a good idea for leading Democrats, not to say the rank and file of the party, to take a month off some time and study up on Jefferson. They would probably find out some things that would surprise them. They would discover, among other things, that Jefferson, in his Kentucky resolutions of 1798, first enunciated the doctrines which were afterwards taken up by Calhoun and which resulted in rebellion in 1861. Of course to the Southern element of the party that would be a cause for additional glorification of their patron saint. Another cause for Jefferson's beatification would be found in the fact that he pursued the same course in regard to offices that Mr Cleveland is pursuing now, that is, he announced that merit and fitness should be the test, and then went ahead and turned out the office holders of the other party and put in his own adherents.

Whether they would be as pleased with Jefferson's administration if they should study it up we cannot tell. Certainly Secretary Herbert would not like it, for Jefferson never believed in a navy and had no use for it, and during his term of office our navy was almost destroyed. By his weak and shilly shallying policy our country was driven to war with Great Britain and if it had not been for the American volunteer seamen that war would have ended disastrously for us.

Every success that Jefferson scored during his Presidency was secured by the adoption of Federalist principles as in the annexation of Louisiana. Every time he applied his own principles his administration was a miserable failure. It has been the same way ever since. The only Democratic President since Jefferson who made anything of a success of his administration was Andrew Jackson, and he was one of the most un-Jeffersonian Federalists that ever [illegible] with an iron hand the nullification in South Carolina [illegible] of 1832, [illegible] of his [illegible]

[illegible] followed Jefferson as in his war upon the United States bank, he inflicted irreparable damage upon the country.

For a party of opposition, Jeffersonian principles work well enough, for a party in power they are worse than useless.

MEXICAN AND CANADIAN ANNEXATION

There can be no doubt that annexation is a burning question on the other side of the Canadian border. It is easy for the people on this side to realize how strong the sentiments in favor of union with this country. The majority of the inhabitants of this country care nothing about Canada and would not lift a finger to help annex that country. Whatever sentiment there is on this side of the line is confined to a very few people, most of them newspaper men.

[illegible] making an exception of the three Atlantic provinces [illegible] copied into Canadian papers [illegible] far and wide [illegible] Mercier [illegible] that the people [illegible] der annexation.

Mr Mercier [illegible] are at [illegible] ably for some purpose [illegible] connected with the annexation movement although figures show they have any most [illegible] ment. In his speech Mr Mercier disclaimed any annexation. He wants Canada independent of Great Britain so that she may be able to negotiate with other countries [illegible] dependency of Great Britain [illegible] the British foreign office [illegible] terms. Possibly Mr Mercier will find out while he is at Washington that Mr Cleveland would not [illegible] should issue a declaration [illegible] ence.

There are reasons why annexation would be beneficial to the United States as undoubtedly it would be to Canada, but there are other reasons why under annexation of very doubtful expediency. It is a question whether we ought to take into the Union a State like Quebec whose inhabitants are alien to us in race, language, customs and religion. They have been there for three hundred years now and have been only very slightly assimilated to Anglo Saxon ways. They might be assimilated by us, or they might not. If they should not be the experiment of taking them into the Union with the full powers of a State would be risky if not positively dangerous.

The time is not yet ripe for annexation. Canada must work out her own destiny for a while longer. Still, the great movements of public opinion there ought to interest Americans more than they do, and more attention must be paid to Canadian affairs by American statesmen in the few years now coming than has been paid for a long time past.

Allegations of corruption in the New York Custom House and Appraisers office are always made at the beginning of every new administration. The cuttlefishes want to get in and charges are easily trumped up against the incumbents. In the present case there may be something in the charges. Some of the special agents of the Treasury Department at New York have always been more of a hindrance than a help to efficient administration. It is their business, they think, to find out that something wrong is going on and too often they have been accused the Appraiser and Collector instead of aiding those officials. At the time the system of special agents should be reorganized on a better basis.

Colorado leads all the other States in her contribution to the Mary Washington memorial. This must be highly gratifying to the ladies who organized the Colonial Ball at Denver in February, for it was mainly by their efforts that the Colorado contribution was made so large.

The Texas Panhandle people want a State of their own, but as the present State cannot be divided without the consent of a majority of its voters the prospects for division seem to be rather poor at present.

Maxwell is apparently trying to beat Stevenson's record as a beheadsman. At 100 per day his new postmasters will run up to 1,000 in number by the first of July.

The debate in Parliament on the second reading of the Home Rule bill goes on slowly. Unless cloture is applied it may last for a month yet.

Can You Spell These Words

Some months ago the postmaster of Lockport, N. Y., had in his employ two men, one of whom was a colored man, and the other a white man, who had been employed for eighty-five years in the same capacity. If spelling is an accomplishment, the latter is a Kate Field's Washington.

RELIGIOUS WORLD

Notes and Comments by the Rev. Jas. H. Greer, D. D.

On a recent Sunday says The Chicago Advance, The Tribune of this city tried the poor man experiment on a number of the prominent churches. Reporters were instructed to dress in their everyday garb as the poorer classes usually wear and to attend the more aristocratic churches for the purpose of observing what kind of a reception would be given the poor at those places of worship. The outcome of it all, according to the reports of the experimenters, was that the poor men themselves were ashamed of their own self-conscious poverty, fearing suspicion of the part they were playing, that they could not feel at home. But if the churches had invited them by their presence they would hardly have been at ease.

One young man, who had been given a black and glossy coat, silk hat and white tie, that highly fashionable Episcopal Church, the Epiphany, and with his battered slouch hat under his arm and the rents of his blue flannel shirt, dirty, ragged and unmentionable, by a reckless disregard, was shown to a seat in the middle aisle of a church of worshippers and listened to what there was of it, except that of the reporter, hear a sermon.

At St James Church a young reporter put in an appearance [illegible] that she wore an old last year's hat and torn gloves and an old ash can [illegible] dirt, but this is scarcely that doubtful [illegible]

From the press of Hampton Institute has come a very interesting [illegible] Hampton Negro Year Book. Hampton Institute, General S. C. Armstrong, [illegible] four hundred pages, illustrated, containing a great deal of information concerning the Negro. We [illegible] tracts showing what the race is and what work is in the world. It is an interesting and [illegible] in handsome Hampton style.

Real Estate Notes

Houses for rent are few and rents are well paid and the outlook as a whole is a very promising one

For a safe, sure and paying investment Colorado Springs real estate is second to none in the land It is a gilt edged security and nobody finds any difficulty in getting money at 7 and 8 per cent

Real estate is livening up in Colorado Springs The dealers report more calls for property in all parts of the city There is scarcely a vacant storeroom in the business portion and a good many residences are also occupied and there are [illegible] in all parts of the city by the well-and [illegible] The street railway is the only thing needed to give a [illegible] time to prices

On the West Side the same activity is [illegible] The various additions are covered with dwellings handsome in design and well appointed within West Side folks are progressive and enterprising and the rest of the city is proud of this portion of the town

To the south the usual number of smaller houses are going up on every hand They range in price from $1 000 to $2 000 are easily built, are a good investment and offer a splendid chance for a man of moderate means to get a home for himself Nothing can stop the progress of building in the south part of town and it is a rapidly growing section

Cascade avenue property though high priced is considered by many to be the best money making property in the city to day The vacant property on this avenue is largely held by people who intended to build homes for themselves Property offered for sale is quickly taken and people make money on it When compared with other residence lots in Colorado Springs property on Cascade avenue is lower than the others A good many expensive houses are now under way or will be in the near future These include the Tansill house the Donaldson and others not yet ready for mentioning

FRANK CARPENTER'S PORTRAIT TALK

The Famous Correspondent Will Tell of Famous Men

On Saturday evening April 29 Mr Frank G Carpenter the well known newspaper correspondent will give his celebrated Portrait Talk at the First Presbyterian Church under the auspices of the Winter Night College This is an extraordinary entertainment and should be greeted by an extraordinary audience Mr Carpenter has traveled in nearly every country on the globe and has met the famous men of all of them He has been well acquainted with most of the prominent men of our own country for twenty years past, and his anecdotes of them are highly entertaining

The pictures Mr Carpenter exhibits are not only portraits of these famous men but views of beautiful scenes in various parts of the world His stereopticon is one of the very best, and the pictures in connection with the talk form a unique and exceptionally attractive entertainment Seats will be on sale next week.

A Romantic Tale

A woman with two children after dining in a Texas restaurant, discovered that she had lost her pocketbook The proprietor was in the act of having her arrested as a fraud when a man walked up and offered to pay the bill Both looked at each other as though they were acquainted but neither spoke Once they had been man and wife but had been divorced about 10 years ago.—Philadelphia Ledger

To Some Useful Purpose

Dertie May I have some bread and butter and sugar?

Mamma Yes, dear But why do you want butter when you can have sugar on your bread?

Dertie Oh, because the butter makes the sugar stick and keeps it from sliding off down my neck.—Harper's Young People.
